A Single Shard (Arabic Edition) By Linda Sue Park

A Single Shard is what Tree-ear finally delivered to the royal court. Tree-ear was an orphan kid when Craneman took charge of him; Craneman was too proud to beg for money or food so they lived under the bridge getting their food from looking for leftovers in other people's trash. Their little village was famous for its pottery work, and Tree-ear was fond of watching Mane, the best pottery maker in the village. He would sneak every day in Mane's backyard to watch him create his artistic works and wished that one day he would be able to be as clever as Mane. One day, Tree-ear found the works of Mane left unattended, he approached to watch it more closely and accidentally dropped one broken. To compensate the pottery maker, Tree-ear had to work with him for 9 days for free, but the 9 days extended to be a year and a half, against a meal a day. How was Tree-ear assigned for his trip to the royal court? And what happened during this trip? Linda Sue Park tells us in a beautiful way this story of devotion from Korea. The Arabic translation of the book is suitable for young adults in a way that enriches their vocabulary.
